NONCOMPLIANCE SUMMARY

U.S. Probation Officer Action:

On December 8, 2011, Ausaf Umar Siddiqui was sentenced in the Northern District of California to 72 months imprisonment, followed by five years supervised release after being convicted of Wire Fraud and Money Laundering. As a condition of supervision Siddiqui was ordered to pay a $65,584,864 in restitution. As of this date, Siddiqui has paid $185,323.95 towards his restitution. The probation office has reviewed his financial status and believes Mr. Siddiqui has been making payments to the best of his ability. The probation office has contacted the Financial Litigation Unit of the U.S. Attorney's Office and they are prepared to oversee the collection of the restitution in this case.

Mr. Siddiqui has already completed three years of supervised release. Since commencing supervision, his health has declined. Most significantly his kidneys failed and he is not sure how much longer he will live. Mr. Siddiqui has medical appointments several times a week, including his dialysis which can last hours. Following dialysis appointments, Mr. Siddiqui is exhausted and spends most of his down time resting. Mr. Siddiqui expressed the possibility of emergency travel to his native country of India if a kidney becomes available. If he remains on supervision, it will be more difficult for him to travel. In addition to kidney failure, Mr. Siddiqui is also legally blind. He has difficulty completing necessary paperwork without help. The U.S. Probation Office has helped Mr. Siddiqui as much as possible but cannot complete and sign paperwork for him. Mr. Siddiqui has limited family support, as he rents a room by himself in an Air B&B in Basking Ridge. To complete his paperwork, he would need to hire a professional. This would be financially difficult for him given he is not able to work. Despite the inability to work, Mr. Siddiqui has remained compliant and continues to pay towards his restitution each month.

Recommendation:

The U.S. Probation Office is recommending the offender's supervision terminate early with money owed based on his failing health and the fact he is low risk to the community. Siddiqui will be referred to the financial litigation unit for collection of his restitution each month.

Respectfully submitted,

Laura M. Kellogg
